

A new smile
every day?

SURELY NOT!

A missing tooth may no longer require a lengthy trip to the dentist

We've just heard some great news for anyone who is missing teeth and unhappy about their smile, which doesn't involve a long treatment programme at the dentist.

An innovative new dental treatment, called 'All-on-4' uses the latest in dental implant technology to provide you with new teeth to exactly match your natural teeth, in just one visit to the dentist. Now that's something to smile about!

Losing even a single tooth can be extremely distressing, affects confidence as well as having the potential to affect your long-term health. But there's no need to suffer any more.

All-on-4 can literally change a person's life; with its natural-looking and long lasting results, patients who undergo treatment no longer feel embarrassed about their smile, boosting confidence and self-esteem.

If the thought of that starts those smile muscles twitching, you'll be delighted to know that this is now being offered by Award Winning Dental practice Elleven in the West End of London and can work even for those patients who have been told they are not suitable for implants previously.

So no more nightmares of dentures and a perfect example of what 21st century dentistry has to offer!
